Volunteer & Beneficiary Quotes

“In our village, goat meat is a luxury we can’t even imagine. On Eid, we usually make do with just chilli pickle. But this time, we received meat—and even rice. Our children had biryani for the first time in a year. We didn’t have a single grain of rice at home. If you hadn’t given us that as well, we would’ve had nothing to cook.”

— A mother in a remote village near Bihar-Jharkhand border

- Meat and rice were delivered in home-packed boxes.
- Handicapped, widows, and laborers all received with duas.
- Non-Muslim neighbors also shared in the Qurbani, as is tradition here.

“Eid didn’t feel like Eid this year. There’s been tension, and we were just trying to survive. But then IMRC came. They brought new clothes for our children and performed Qurbani in our village. Suddenly, everything changed. Our hearts filled with joy.”
— A father of four, Kashmir

- 100 sheep were sacrificed and distributed in forgotten corners of Kashmir.
- Among the recipients were widows, laborers, and others who were displaced.
- For many, it was the only non-veg meal of the year.
